Alberta Publishers Feted At "Wonderful Waterton"

When the Alberta division of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association gathered at Waterton National Park on Saturday, August 31, this group picture was snapped by the Herald's cameraman. The convention delegates and their wives were guests of the Lethbridge Herald at a luncheon at the Prince of Wales hotel and it was at the hotel that the picture was taken. Senator Buchanan, host for the luncheon, is shown on the extreme right. The group also enjoyed a cruise to the head of the lakes arranged by the Canadian Rockies Hotel Company, Ltd., operators of the Prince of Wales hotel, who also arranged an interesting Indian powwow featuring Blackfoot Indians from Glacier National Park, Montana. POET OF THE YUKON VISITS

JASPER PARK LODGE

Probability that he will return to England as soon as his family is settled at Vancouver was expressed by Robert W. Service, famous poet of the Yukon, who returned to the Dominion recently after 25 years' residence in France. He emphasized that Great Britain can utilize the services of every available able-bodied man, not necessarily in military ranks, but in fields of industry and to further organization of war effort.

Commenting on the fall of France, the 64-year-old poet stated that the false security in the belief that the Maginot Line was impregnable, and also incompetent leadership, were prominent factors in the final breakdown of French morale. Mr. Service, with his wife and daughter, escaped across the English Channel after capitulation and only a few hours prior to German occupation of the area in which he lived.

Holidaying at Jasper Park Lodge, Mr. Service has devoted most of his time walking, swimming and canoeing. He plans to go on to the Pacific coast, but will not visit the Yukon this year.

Members of the Alberta Division of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association held their annual convention at the Marquis hotel, Lethbridge, on Friday last, winding up with a banquet at the Prince of Wales hotel at Waterton Lakes on Saturday as guests of the Lethbridge Daily and Weekly Herald. Convention sessions at Lethbridge were interspersed with social programmes, with banquets being tendered by the Lethbridge Board of Trade and Alberta wholesale paper dealers. Splendid programmes were the order of the day, with addresses by His Worship Mayor Elton, Senator Buchanan and others, and various vocal and instrumental numbers. At Waterton Lakes the party were entertained to a trip by the motorship International to the States' end of the lake and return, followed by luncheon and a pow-wow by a troupe of Blackfeet Indians from Glacier Park. Upwards of one hundred formed the party.

In The Regular Way

The federal government's decision, announced by Hon. J. G. Gardiner, as Minister of War Services, to permit the dissemination of information concerning departmental activities "in the regular way while it is news" has been acclaimed with approval generally by the daily press of the country and should be accorded a similar reception by the general public.

In accepting advice tendered by D. B. Rogers, Editor of the Regina Leader-Post, who was called upon by the government to make a survey of this question of distribution of public information, Mr. Gardiner announced that there will be no centralization of governmental news, a decision which was based on sound fundamentals.

As more than one newspaper pointed out when this decision was announced, dangers lurk in the centralization of public information. For one thing when dissemination of information is solely controlled by a high powered bureau, there is always a temptation to give the news a slant favorable to the authority behind it. Such an organization has the power to withhold information indefinitely or to suppress it entirely, and whether it does so or not, the mere fact that it can do so engenders suspicion. It can become purely a propaganda machine, and nobody wants that in this enlightened country.

There is a further disadvantage to centralization. It precludes accessibility to the source of news, and this was aptly pointed out by Mr. Rogers himself in his report when he said:

"There is no more justification for interference with the normal flow of news in time of war than in times of peace," and, "governments which are truly interested in securing an intelligently informed public opinion can best bring this about by increasing the accessibility of news at its source."

It's Costly Too

Apart from these aspects of the question there is also the question of the cost of setting up a central publicity bureau. The appointment of press liaison officers since the war broke out is already costing the government nearly $60,000 a year and this expense would be increased with the extension of such a policy, and at a time, when every dollar in the public treasury is required for other purposes.

"Half a dozen reporters, equipped with a serviceable typewriter apiece, under orders of one chief, could do more effective listening, and they are trained to know what the public wants to learn and what should be suppressed in the public interest, for the prosecution of the war," said the Fort William Times-Journal, commending the government's decision.

The case against centralization of news was aptly summed up by the Halifax (N.S.) Chronicle whose editor said: "Centralization of news would be cumbersome, inefficient and highly suspicious" and added: "There are certain events which for reasons of military secrecy cannot be immediately reported, of course, but less centralization would be helpful. It should not be necessary for a senior officer to communicate with Ottawa every time he has something newsworthy to relate. If his judgment on what can or cannot be released is unsafe, he should not be a senior officer."

In support of the principle of the establishment of centralization of news in war time through a bureau of liaison officers it has been suggested that such an organization is required to relieve hard pressed cabinet ministers from the necessity of interviewing newsmen. It is admitted, of course, that the Prime Minister and those cabinet ministers directly in charge of various phases of the war effort are very busy men and are carrying a heavy burden, but arrangements could undoubtedly be made for periodic conferences at stated times with the representatives of the press.

Reduce To A Minimum

Approving the suggestion of the Ottawa Journal that the Prime Minister hold a weekly conference with the press and that similar weekly conferences be arranged with Minister of Finance J. L. Ralston, accompanied by Minister of Air A. G. Power and Minister of Naval Affairs A. Macdonald, the Winnipeg Tribune said editorially:

"If Mr. King and his service ministers were to meet the press weekly for short conferences, the government would be in a better position to tell the story of Canada's war effort. This principle has long been recognized in the United States, where the President, one of the busiest executives in Christendom, holds weekly press conferences, even in peace time. In war time, they are more necessary than ever."

Direct access to the sources of news, whether in peace or war, is not only advantageous to the newspapers, but it is beneficial to the government and above all to the nation. It gives the government opportunity of securing first hand knowledge of public opinion and a better chance to exercise that leadership which is essential to successful prosecution of the war. Moreover, direct contact engenders confidence in the public mind, also, vital if the country's war effort is to be maintained at the peak of efficiency.

It is admitted that the exigencies of war demand the sacrifice of some liberties, but let the sacrifice of liberty of the press be reduced to the minimum and only to the degree necessary to ensure the safety of the country.

Has Permanent Chart

Like a walking registration card was a Rumanian who took out his national registration at St. Catharines. When asked questions about dates of his birth, marriage, when he came to Canada, when he was naturalized, etc., he simply consulted the chart tattooed on his arm, where he had all his own vital statistics.

Had Simple Habits

Despite his great wealth, Walter F. Chrysler was only one of plain jewellery, a ring on the small finger of his right hand. He always bought three suits at a time, a blue, brown and gray. What little reading he did besides scientific articles was confined mostly to mystery stories, and almost all of his reading was done in bed.

For more than 40 years a milkman in Stoke Newington, England, never received more than $16 a week salary, but he saved enough to buy houses, and when he died recently he left over $53,000.

Toronto Girl To Summarize Reports From Other Countries

Jessie Gillespie, daughter of W. Gillespie, executive of the Massey-Harris Company, Toronto, has begun work in the "records" department of the British Broadcasting Company where her knowledge of French and Spanish will be useful in summarizing reports from other countries.

Last year Miss Gillespie received a scholarship from the French Government entitling her to a year's study in France. The outbreak of war in Europe did not deter her, although after crossing the Atlantic in October she studied in Montpelier instead of Paris.

On June 21, she was advised to leave France at once. She tried to get in touch with her brother James, a French resident for some years at Nantes in the north. Telephone and telegraph communications were stopped. By bus, taxi and "bumbling" ride she finally reached St. Jean de Luz on the Bay of Biscay and embarked on a large liner carrying several thousand refugees. A few hours later among them she found her brother with his wife and three children.

Miss Gillespie intends continuing the work upon her doctorate, her thesis to be on the novelist Jules Green.

A Farmer's Shelter

Englishman Made His Out Of An Old Motor Car

One English farmer, said Hqn. Duncan Marshall, has made a more or less bomb-proof shelter for his family out of an old large motor car. He has stacked hay over it to make thick walls of the hay on all sides with a large stack overhead. Ventilation, an entrance, is arranged through a quite large stack on one side. The greatest danger would be if the hay caught fire, but a lookout is provided to guard against such an emergency. This is what it means to have war in your own country and brings home to us in Canada the serious risks to the lives and property of the farmers in Britain at the present time.

Carrying Firearms

Increase Penalties For Non-Registration Of Rifles And Shotguns

The Dominion government has passed an order-in-council increasing penalties for non-registration of rifles and shotguns.

The order, published in the current edition of the Canada Gazette, imposes a penalty of $500 fine or two years imprisonment, or both, for cases of conviction on indictment.

This penalty is in addition to one previously imposed of $50 fine or 30 days, or both, in cases on summary conviction.

Registration of rifles and shotguns is being carried on in Canada at present and all such firearms must be registered.

Canadian Flyers

Appear To Take Naturally To The Business Of Flying

We have said it before, but it will bear repeating: Canadians are "natural" when it comes to flying. All their self-reliance, their familiarity with automobiles, tractors and the like, their experience in the "wide-open spaces" of this great Dominion, stand them in good stead when they undertake to become pilots.

Canada is doing the right thing by emphasizing air training in her war effort, for we have the cool and confident young men who make the world's best flyers—Lethbridge Herald.

Turned In Perfect Work

Man Easily Won Over Fifteen Women For His Knitting

A man who has followed the example of His Majesty and become an expert knitter won the distinction of having the only perfect pair of socks submitted in the special hospitals fancy class for exhibition at the C.N.E. in Toronto.

The judges report that sixteen entries were submitted, a very handsome and some quite fancy. H. Kennedy, of the Queen Alexandra Sanatorium, London, got 100 points for his socks. He was the only man to make a bid for the prize and won over 15 women.

"I think" are the two most over-worked words in the English language, asserts a college professor. Not only that, but in most cases they constitute a gross exaggeration.

Newly baked bread loaves are stored by placing them outdoors and freezing them in Siberia. A loaf is brought in and heated when needed.

Shower Of Aluminum

British Women Responded Nobly To Appeal For Kitchen Utensils

The two kettle question soon will be telling little what they think of him, said a woman the other day. She was referring to the airplanes in the making from hundreds of aluminum kitchen utensils sacrificed by housewives of Britain. "I've always had the urge to throw a saucepan," she went on. "Now I'm going to get indirect satisfaction."

The aluminum tea and baking sets of Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret are there, sent by themselves from the Royal Lodge at Windsor. Pots and pans from Buckingham, Sandringham, Windsor and St. James palaces; bits of souvenir shrapnel, of airplanes and aepellins shot down in the war, all one corner. A little tea kettle with a card reading "To the King from Lisabet" came from a four-year-old girl in the north country.

Several bits of shrapnel had a card "I carried these around in my leg once. Please send them home."

The aluminum shoe-trees of the Queen are in the centre along with the fuselage and bits of three airplanes shot down by "Cobber" Kain, the New Zealand ace who was killed in a crash landing.

At the back a cartoon shows one woman with her nose in the air while passing two of her neighbors. One whispers to the other, "It's the stuck-up thing she is since Lord Beaverbrook brought down the two Dorniers with her flying pan."

The Cross Channel Steamers

Skipper Of These Boats Have Shown Incredible Bravery

Slipping the prize of the cross-channel steamer part in the war, a writer in the London Daily Sketch remarks that the skippers have shown incredible bravery. Some of them made no fewer than seven round trips to Dunkirk, and after that their vessels, scarred with shrapnel, sailed to and fro between England and France on errands fraught with danger. The ships, painted dull grey, have their names erased, but there is something glorious about their work and dirty looks. Asked if he had been really frightened during the repeated trips he made to Dunkirk, a wireless operator admitted he'd been terrified, but that the admirable courage of the British and French troops on board had kept everybody's spirits high. On one occasion he dodged into his cabin when there was a burst of shrapnel.

"Don't worry," said a young soldier playing bridge on the deck, "you'll never know if it hits you."

Libel On Polton Ivy

"Polson Ivy," says Kitchener Record, "is to the vacationist what Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin are to the world." That's a libel on the poison Ivy. It never was known to jump out and infect peaceful vacationists who left it alone.

Fighting Strength

The 300,000 men who will be called up for training within 12 months starting in October will bring the fighting strength of the Dominion to well over half a million.

True Patriotic Spirit

Shown By People In Small Fishing Town Of Black's Harbour

The Strathroy Age-Dispatch says it is doubtful whether many readers have ever heard of Black's Harbour, N.B. It is a small town, only about half the size of Strathroy. It is a fishing town, and like other fishing towns in recent years, has not been too affluent. It has one industry, that of Cannons Bros. Limited, canners and packers of sea food, whose name is likely more familiar to people in this part of Canada than the town in which the industry is located.

Canadians generally are showing a genuine willingness to assist in Canada's war effort, but we doubt whether there is another municipality that has shown its patriotism in such a tangible way as Black's Harbour. The citizens of that town of 1,500 persons have subscribed a total of $51,000 for investment in interest-free Dominion of Canada bonds. This is a wonderful spirit and worthy of emulation by residents of other municipalities.

Teaching In Far North

Ekimono Travel 1,000 Miles To Attend School

Ekimono and Ouchukuan Indian children come as far as 1,000 miles to attend All Saints' Anglican School at Aklayik, Northwest Territories, according to Miss Hazel Keyes who has taught at the school for the last four years.

"They come from such places as King William's Land. Most of them can't speak any English when they arrive, but they soon learn. From five to 15 years of age they all enter Grade I. The type of education they receive encourages them to make fuller use of their native arts and talents for making a living in the north."

Sewing is one of the chief delights of the girls, and the boys are quite good mechanics. There are about 100 children in the school.

Miss Keyes was in charge of the Brownie pack, junior members of the most northerly Girl Guide pack in the world.

The natives take an intense interest in the war and often are worried about it, she stated. Some of them were concerned for her safety when she left for civilization.

Voluntary Service

British Housewives Enroll For Emergency Courses Taught By Air Raids

Britain's housewives are linking up with air raid precaution services to help in dealing with damage and casualties caused by raids.

Workers by Women's Voluntary Services, whose chairman is the Dowager Marchioness of Reading, are enrolling housewives willing to assist A. R. P. workers by guaranteeing supplies of hot water, tea for people suffering shock, blankets for those seriously affected and bandages for the wounded.

In one London area the problem of finding material for bandages was a serious one. Then someone had the ingenious idea of using ballet skirts. A round was made of theatre featuring ballet and all discarded skirts were collected, sterilized and cut into strips.

In Islington housewives were canvassed to look after children in the confusion that might follow large-scale raids. Others have undertaken to have buckets of water on their doorsteps for supplying strump-pumps, used to tackle incendiary bombs.

GERMANY FAILS IN AIR ATTACKS OVER BRITAIN

London.—With the first year of Europe's war now ending, enough experience has been gained to show that the plane, as a new instrument of attack, seems to require massed targets and low altitudes in order to become effective. Otherwise, the pre-war expectation that air offensives would have terrifying results has not been realized.

The German attacks over Great Britain have demonstrated the weakness of plane combat in its present stage of development. Hitler repeatedly proclaimed his conviction that Great Britain could be overwhelmed by air bombardment, but with the double advantage of numerical plane superiority and nearness of aviation bases he does not seem any nearer that objective to-day than a year ago.

After the most intensive air attacks within German power to deliver, no primary objective has been gained. British shipping still traverses coastal waters at will; British factories continue to function; British civilian casualties from air bombs have been less than road accidents. The widely heralded invasion of Britain planned to follow domination of the air, appears to have been indefinitely postponed.

These negative results are the consequence of Britain's resolute defence with fewer planes than Hitler has at his command. The British have achieved their success basically by breaking up German formations and keeping the Germans high in the air. These tactics have split German squadrons into individual units, time and again, allowing heavy toll to be taken. But, more importantly, the high altitudes adopted by the Germans have made direct hits on targets and machine gunning only rarely possible.

Considerable damage has been done by the Germans, but it has been sporadic. Continuous concentration on targets has been impossible because specified objectives could not be hit at will by planes flying two to four miles in the air. A large city area might be repeatedly bombed, but chance determines whether the bombing will fall from a great height there can be no consistently accurate aim.

Nation Wide Appeal For Funds To Start This Month

Toronto.—The Canadian Red Cross Society will launch a nation-wide appeal for $5,000,000 starting Sept. 23, Norman Sommerville, national chairman, announced.

"Almost all the $5,000,000 contributed during our campaign last November has been spent in meeting emergency calls on the Red Cross during the past year," Mr. Sommerville said.

With three emergency calls developing during the past week, including a request from the department of national defence to co-operate in the provision of eight convalescent hospitals in Canada, the Red Cross is faced with new responsibilities, he said.

"At our next central meeting in Toronto next week, the executive will recommend that pursuant to the request from department of defence, the Canadian Red Cross should provide, equip and co-operate in the maintenance of eight convalescent hospitals in various parts of the country for soldiers invalided from overseas or at home."

An emergency call was cable from the overseas commissioner in London, stating that 100,000 refugees who have fled to England from invaded countries, as well as thousands of evacuated children in Britain, are in desperate need of clothing.

Canada's Fire Losses

Brantford, Ont.—Fire losses in 1939 cost Canadians $24,600,000, bringing the total fire damage in Canada for the period 1929-39 to $311,600,000. A Leslie Ham, manager of the Montreal branch of the Canadian Underwriter Association, told the Dominion Fire Chiefs Association of Canada at the annual convention.

Message Of Gratitude

London.—Owners of a freighter have sent a message of gratitude to Lt.-Commander J. C. Hibbard, commanding officer of H.M.C.S. Skeena, for the "heroic work" of the captain and his crew when the freighter was torpedoed recently off the coast of England.

Air Raid Alarm

Writer Describes Feelings In The Midst Of An Attack

London.—Hail of German bombers overheard? At any moment a blast might end your existence. You think of the odds, shrug and turn in.

They had given up the show and gone to bed.

How can one go to bed with the grinding beat of a German bomber overhead? At any moment a blast might end your existence.

But so might a bolt of lightning in any thunderstorm.

You think of the odds, shrug and turn in.

Watching the show wears out like sitting at a grand fireworks display for hours.

For those who do watch there is a horrid splendour about those night raids.

Your feelings are mixed. For short periods you feel that you personally are the hunted one—but most of the time it is the fellow somewhere up above who is hunted.

The black sky becomes a garden of unimaginably tall flowers, usually in swaying clusters. The stems, of course, are the searchlight beams and they blossom where they touch down clouds.

The heads come together as if the flowers are reaching unusually for a bee buzzing above.

The ground under your feet and the wall against which you lean tremble as guns speak about you and there seem suddenly to be lightning bugs among the flowers.

The drowning sea up there is the hunted thing now and you belong with those who are stalking it.

Discretion comes to you when the stalks and blossoms are all about you and you look up into a cone of light and hear the bee almost directly overhead.

The illusion of a garden vanishes. So you seek shelter a moment until your ears tell you the plane is circling over another part of the city and a scorching discloses he thinks he has found an objective and dropped a bomb... another... two more.

Somewhere unlucky watchers who stood as you did may be dying. This is a side of it you cannot dwell upon.

New War Loan

Subscription Books Will Open On September 9th

Ottawa.—Hon. Charles Dunning, former minister of finance, will be chairman of the national subscription committee for the second war loan, a post which he filled with the first war loan, Finance Minister J. L. Liley has announced.

Books for the second war loan, in which a total of between $250,000,000 and $300,000,000 will be sought, will open Sept. 9.

"We are delighted that Mr. Dunning has again agreed to assume this responsibility," said Mr. Liley. "Mr. Dunning carried out his task with distinction and success in our first war loan campaign and it is a matter of satisfaction that we can again have the benefit of his years of experience in this work."

The first war loan was issued in January, when $200,000,000 was sought. The loan was heavily oversubscribed but subscriptions were accepted for only the amount announced, in keeping with the government's policy of recent years.

Use American Vessels

U.S. Ships Can Take Children From War Zones

Washington.—The White House announced that President Roosevelt has signed the bill authorizing American vessels to enter European combat zones and remove children from the centres of war.

The bill suspends provision of the U.S. neutrality law which banned American ships from entering combat zones for any purpose.

Under the measure, the American vessels could proceed to Europe, plainly marked with American flags at all times, if guaranteed safe conduct by all belligerents. But Germany has said it cannot make such a guarantee, so it appeared doubtful that the new law can be used, at least in the near future.

French Financial Expert

Vichy.—Robt. Lacour-Gayet, French financial expert, was ordered by the Vichy government to proceed to New York on an "important economic and financial mission."

Turner Valley Oil Output

Calgary.—The Alberta petroleum and natural gas conservation board increased the allowed crude oil output from the Turner Valley oil field, 200 barrels daily, to approximately 27,000 barrels of crude daily.

MASS MIGRATION OF CHILDREN FROM UNITED KINGDOM

Ottawa.—Some 1,400 children have been moved from their homes in the United Kingdom to Canada under the "assisted" or government scheme, Resources Minister T. A. Crerar announced.

The minister said the majority of children now in Canada had come on transportation provided by parents or friends and came to homes offered by relatives in Canada. He was now glad to say the government scheme had got under way.

Mr. Crerar spoke over the national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, introducing R. Keith Jopson, British liaison officer with the Canadian advisory committee for overseas children.

"In several thousand Canadian homes there are British children who have arrived in Canada within the past four months—almost half of them within the past 30 days. Thousands of additional homes have been offered and we hope within a reasonable time to receive children to fill these homes."

Reports received, he said, showed that the children received were of excellent type.

Tr bringing of children from the United Kingdom to Canada has practical strategic significance, said Mr. Jopson, who stated children being sent to Canada were a fair cross-section of the British juvenile population.

He hoped the evacuation of the children might be the beginning of a fair distribution of the population of the British Commonwealth of nations.

"The more non-combatants that are removed from the war zone, the more freedom there will be for the movement of troops; the less mouths there will be to feed within our fortress; the more currency and ships will be available for the purchase and transport of munitions of war; and the less strain there will be on inland transport and air raid precautions services," he said.

"It is no small thing for parents in the old country to send their children abroad, perhaps for a lengthy period, perhaps forever, to be cared for by foster parents whom they do not know and have never seen... but the parents will be fortified by the certain knowledge that Canada will assume this role of foster parent with a full sense of the grave responsibility of this trust; that she will give to these children every bit as much care and loving devotion as she would to her own sons and daughters."

Mr. Jopson said the movement of the children might be one of the blessings arising from the horrors of the war.

The children at an impressionable age would form associations and friendships which would strengthen the ties of the British Commonwealth of nations. Their outlook would be broadened and those that returned would be imbued with new ideas and impressed with wider horizons. Those who remained would contribute to the prosperity and greatness of the Dominion.

The German propagandists had gloated over the scheme, heralding it as defeatism. Nothing could be further from the truth. Was it defeatism, he asked, to remove non-combatants from the line of battle?

ON DEFENCE BOARD

O. M. Biggar, K.C., prominent military, legal and international affairs adviser, who has been appointed vice of Canada's representatives on the permanent joint Board of Defense for Canada and the United States.

Events in France had proved the wisdom of such a course.

"The mathematical chances of being killed by a bomb are small. That is not the reason we are sending our children to Canada. It is because we want to protect them from the nervous and physical strain of taking them from their beds, night after night, and sometimes several times a night, and putting them into an air raid shelter in the back yard. And there is another potent reason. It is because we parents feel that once we have put our children into the safety we can roll up our sleeves and make a better job of dealing with the Nazis."

Military Training

First 30,000 Men Move To Camp On October 9th

Ottawa.—The first 30,000 men called up for 30-days military training under the Mobilization Act, it is expected, will move into camp on Oct. 9, Defence Minister Ralston told a press conference. By that date they will have been selected and given physical examination.

What age class other than the 21-year-old class will be called up at that time will depend on the number of men this class will provide. The boards that will control the drafts in each military district will be notified of the number of men required there to provide the 30 training centres with 30,000 men.

Plans call for two training periods of 30 days each before the new year. A space will be allowed after the first classes have completed their training and before the second camps start to give departmental officials and army officers an opportunity to weigh the results of the first training period.

National war services department will provide transportation of the men from their homes to the training centres.

Plans provide to train 30,000 men each time, the minister said. "Should some of the camps which have been provided to house Canadian Active Service troops later become vacant, then the 30,000 might be increased by using these camps."

Salute British Flag

Buenos Aires.—Crowds aboard two French merchantmen anchored here cheered and dipped their ships' colors three times to the British cruiser Hawkins, flagship of the south Atlantic fleet, as she sailed from port after a 48-hour visit.

ROYALTY ALLOWED TO ENTER THE U.S.

Baroness Bormstein, left, and Prince and Princess Vindyslav, exiles from conquered Poland, are pictured at New York's Ellis Island where they were held before being released by immigration authorities on temporary visas. The baroness married a wealthy American shipbuilder in her early years, but has lived in Poland for 20 years since her husband's death.

Joint Defence Board

British Circle View It As An Important Development

London.—Recent formation of the Canadian-British joint defence board is viewed in official British circles as one of the most important international developments which has taken place since the outbreak of war.

The new phase of co-operation between the Dominion and the republic might be only the first of a series of steps toward greater co-operation not only between those neighboring countries but between the United States and other parts of the empire.

Unofficial quarters believe that one development might be enlargement of the already large flow of war supplies coming to Britain from America. The sale to Canada of some of the hundreds of over-age destroyers gathering barnacles in U.S. navy yards is discussed in these quarters as one possibility.

If the Royal Canadian Navy did secure a sufficient number of the warships, the Dominion might be able to take over the policing of waters of the western hemisphere and release for action on this sea front the British warships now stationed in the Caribbean and elsewhere.

It is emphasized that the defence facilities—and they are facilities—not necessarily bases—were a free offer by the British government. No strings, financial or otherwise, were attached and the sovereignty of the territories would be in no way affected.

Ninety-nine-year leases would be a guarantee to the United States which might spend considerable sums preparing the facilities to meet its special needs.

The lease would guarantee that the British "landlord" would not ask the American "tenant" to vacate the premises on short notice.

CANADA'S THIRD DIVISION TO BE READY IN OCTOBER

Ottawa.—Canada's 3rd division will be concentrated in the Maritime Provinces between Oct. 1 and 15, Defence Minister Ralston announced at a press conference. The division will be fully equipped with motor transport, field guns (18 pounders), howitzers and Lewis or Bren machine guns. An artillery regiment has been acquired near Tracadie, N.B.

By Dec. 15, the minister said, the 4th division will be fully equipped with motor transport and armed with howitzers and field guns, although units of the division will be at their various training centres.

In high good humor, the minister began the conference by saying "Our front line is on the English channel and our drive is to put everything we have there even if it means going short over here."

"The 1st division is over there and I don't want anybody to think it is simply in training. It is ready to take part in any show that comes along."

"The 1st division has now an allotted and specific task. It has already been chosen for five jobs. It has not been called upon to do them because of necessary changing of orders by the high command. This was before the present phase of the war."

"We get too much into the attitude, 'What's that fellow (Hitler) going to do next?' The present is just a phase which is to be followed by an (British) offensive. We can't tell when or where but the Canadians will play their part as well then as they are doing in active defence."

Commenting particularly on General McNaughton's motorcycle brigade, the minister said they were "doing a great job." Three squadrons of about 400 men and three-quarters of another squadron were operating.

He had no doubt that if a man were to be judged by his skill and ability, General McNaughton would take a high place.

With reference to reports of formation of an all-Canadian corps in England, he said such a corps would be formed, as soon as the 2nd division in England had completed its training. "And that won't be very long." (At present General McNaughton commands a British army corps which includes the Canadian 1st division.)

Col. Ralston announced the formation of a tank committee consisting of representatives of the general staff, munitions and supply and experts. The committee will handle matters concerning the perfecting and production of a new fast, high-powered tank, adaptable to both training and service.

NEW FRENCH ALLIES IN THE WAR FOR FREEDOM

London.—The French Cameroons and Congo have followed the lead of the Chad territory and entered the war at Britain's side, turning substantially the whole of French equatorial Africa into a British ally, Gen. Charles Gaulle announced.

Thus 1,000,000-square miles of territory has been aligned with Britain, opening a vast corridor from the south Atlantic to Italian Libya, and creating an uninterrupted British land bridge connecting the Atlantic with the Mediterranean and Red seas.

British military observers remarked, will be afforded a guarantee of the maintenance of communications for attacks on the Italian colonial empire.

Gen. de Gaulle, head of French forces refusing to accept the surrender to Germany ordered by the government of Marshal Philippe Petain, and organizing to fight on, did not himself discuss the military implications of the action.

At his headquarters it was declared their new status as belligerents would sharply restrict Italian and German naval and air movements.

It was said that not only were native troops available in those areas but that there were a "certain number" of airplanes there.

There was speculation that Col. de Larminat, former chief of staff of the French armies of the Near East, already was in equatorial Africa.

It was recalled that recently he came here from Syria for conversations with De Gaulle, and then left on a mission that never has been disclosed.

It was announced that General de Gaulle had appointed Col. de Larminat, commissioner for French equatorial Africa and promoted him to the rank of general. Col. Leclerc was made governor and military commander for the Cameroons.

In Vichy, France, the Petain government, complaining at what it called "British-inspired rebellion" in the French colonial empire, "ousted" the governors of the Chad, the Cameroons and New Caledonia. New Caledonia, along with the New Hebrides, already had decided to join De Gaulle.

The British ministry of information announced that Gen. Catroux, Petain's deputy in the government as governor general of French Indochina, had joined De Gaulle's forces. De Gaulle himself, speaking over the radio, appealed to every part of the old French empire to stand with equatorial Africa.

"I call to duty each French territory for the work of national defence," he said. "I call the army, the navy and the French air force to arms. There remains glories to be garnered for our flags."

French Equatorial Africa, or French Congo, which includes Chad, is one of the most unexplored and wildest spots in the world—959,256 square miles of desert, forests and jungles inhabited by 5,000 Europeans and about 1,500,000 natives.

Besides Chad it consists of the colonies of Gabon, middle Congo and Ubangi-Shari. It produces wild rubber, coffee, cocoa, palm oil, ivory, cotton, livestock and ostriches. Its resources are not well developed.

"We get too much into the attitude, 'What's that fellow (Hitler) going to do next?' The present is just a phase which is to be followed by an (British) offensive. We can't tell when or where but the Canadians will play their part as well then as they are doing in active defence."

NEWS FROM EDMONTON

(T. B. Windross)

Edmonton, Sept. 3.—Chief political interest during the past week has centred in Alberta around the action of the 19 Independent members of the legislature with regard to their recommendations to the government concerning a solution of the problem of harvesting the crop and remuneration for the farmers during the time the markets for wheat are closed.

The Independent members met in the legislative buildings on August 28th, and gave the problem careful consideration, and then put their proposals to the government in writing, as had been requested by Acting-Premier E. C. Manning. What action the government will take on the recommendations is not yet known.

Recommendations made in the letter drafted by the Independents included postponement of all existing liens on unharvested grain to make available security for essential advances to finance the harvesting operations and storage. The letter also stressed the importance of the provincial government urging the Canadian Wheat Board for payment of 80 per cent of the guaranteed price of all grain forced to be held in storage on farms.

The members also urged the necessity for calling an immediate session of the legislature, so that the emergency measures suggested might be given the fullest scope and obtain the widest support.

It is being pointed out that the liens affected by the recent order-in-council passed by the cabinet are only those in which the government is interested. It is necessary for the legislature to authorize the postponement of liens held by private individuals or business corporations.

It was stated that the solution of the problem can best be obtained along the lines of a non-partisan co-operation of the Alberta legislature and the federal parliament.

Some criticism is being heard of the attitude of Premier Aberhart toward the pressing problem of aid for the farmers in getting their crop harvested. Mr. Aberhart, during the whole time this urgent matter has been before the country, has been away on a holiday in British Columbia, giving a series of lectures on Social Credit. While Premier Bracken, of Manitoba, and Premier Patterson, of Saskatchewan, have been devoting nights and days to finding a way out of the crisis for the farmers, the premier of Alberta has been gadding about a neighboring province, stirring up trouble there by his wild-eyed, loud-mouthed vapors about a theory that has proved a miserable disappointment in his own province.

The only proposal the Alberta Social Credit government has ventured upon for a solution of the grain problem for the farmers is another plan for "vouchers" put forward by Hon. E. C. Manning, and Alberta has had a bitter enough experience over these "voucher" experiments. Prosperity certificates and what they cost the people are not forgotten here yet. It was being stated in Edmonton circles this week that what the people of Alberta want is not more experimentation with "vouchers" or "certificates" or any other transferable or non-transferable rubbish, but some practical, sane and tried plan for providing the farmers with real money with which to carry on until the wheat markets of the world are opened up for their grain once more.

It was reported in Edmonton last week that the grain crisis is causing a surplus of farm labor in Alberta, because farmers do not know whether they will be able to pay any wages. This information was given to the public by M. W. Robertson, general superintendent of the employment service of Canada. He said there was not one district in Alberta where there is not sufficient farm labor.

In the Peace River and northern points there has been no call for harvest workers. Cutting in this part of the province was reported 50 per cent under way. In many cases the farmers are helping one another more than they have in former years.

Is it a sign of the times that Britain will let her rich children come out unescorted, but requires a convoy for the government-assisted youngsters? —Financial Post.

A NEW BOOKLET DESCRIBES
ELK ISLAND NATIONAL PARK

Elk Island National Park, Alberta, the home of one of Canada's largest herds of buffalo and bison, is attractively described and illustrated in a new booklet just issued by the National Park Bureau at Ottawa. Situated about 30 miles east of Edmonton, the provincial capital, this interesting area of 51 square miles was first set aside in 1906 to preserve from extinction the mule deer and elk of the region. Following the purchase of the Public herd of buffalo in 1907 by the Dominion government, the first shipments of buffalo were made to Elk Island Park, which is completely fenced. From these animals has grown the magnificent herd of more than 1,100 head which today roams the meadows and woodlands of the park.

In addition to the wild animals, Elk Island National Park possesses many other attractions. On the eastern shore of Astotin Lake, the largest in the park, the National Park Bureau has developed a delightful summer playground. Here will be found a bathing beach, bath-houses, picnic and camp grounds, tennis courts, baseball diamond, large parking areas, and a fine nine-hole golf course, all of which are at the disposal of visitors. Good all-weather roads through the park link up with the main provincial highways on the north, west and south.

Information concerning this attractive wild-life sanctuary, and playground, is contained in the booklet, "Elk Island National Park," which may be obtained without charge from the National Park Bureau, Ottawa, Canada.

ICELAND TO BE SUPPLIED
DIRECT FROM CANADA

Shipment of Red Cross supplies, such as socks, helmets, mufflers and hospital and surgical materials, which have been forwarded to Iceland from Canadian Red Cross warehouses in England, will be provided direct from Canada in future, it has been announced by Mrs. H. P. Plumtree, chairman of war activities.

Since Canada's first troops arrived on the strategic northern outpost, which Britain assumed after the domination of Denmark by Germany, cases of needed supplies have been forwarded regularly from the Canadian Red Cross stores in England. This work was carried on by the advisory committee overseas acting in close co-operation with the Canadian army authorities.

Following discussions with the officials in Canada, and the establishment of arrangement by which shipments could be handled direct from eastern Canadian ports, the London committee has been notified that it no longer needs to release any of its stores, thus avoiding the duplicate shipment from Canada via England to Iceland. First shipment from Canada, it is understood, is already under way for Iceland.

Her mother answered: "Dear Ruth: Get yourself a new boy friend and start over again."

ARE YOU JUST A MEMBER?

Are you an active member—

A co-operative pal,

Or are you just contented

With the pin on your lapel?

Do you take an active part,

To help the work along,

Or are you satisfied to be

The kind that just belong?

Attend the meetings often,

And help with hand and heart—

Don't be just a member,

But take an active part.

Do you attend the meetings

And mingle with the flock,

Or do you always stay at home

And criticize and knock

Do you help your fellows

To draft things out and plan,

Or leave the work to just a few

Who do the best they can?

Just think the problem over,

You know the right from wrong:

Are you an active member,

Or do you just belong?

The above is somewhat ancient, but still, very timely.

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

Government-supported scheme to provide concerts for the public with seats costing threepence will commence with a concert in Newcastle.

The Dominion government has passed an order-in-council increasing penalties for non-registration of rifles and shotguns.

Chief of State Philippe Petain declared at Vichy, France, that he sympathized and agreed with the decision of the American people to arm themselves against eventualities.

For use in the present war, the Manchester Corporation has decided to recover 2,000 yards of aluminum conductor underground cable which was laid during the first Great War.

Touring his constituency at Doncaster during an air raid, John Morgan, Labor M.P., covered a dropped bomb with a tin bathtub and the missile burned itself out.

Seventeen officers and men of the French ships Aurigny and Formose, which are tied up at Buenos Aires, sailed to England to join General Charles de Gaulle's forces.

Two southeast coast chickens, killed by Nazi machine gun fire during a raid, were raffied by their owner, bringing £10 ($48.75) for the Red Cross.

The Royal Air Force's "newest and deadliest aircraft, a dive bomber," and other new types, "will be kept in reserve as a surprise packet for the Nazis," the London Daily Mail declared.

Navy Secretary Frank Knox said the United States navy department has declined to accept a proposal that it take over the site of the New York world's fair for a naval training station.

Ambulances For Britain

Twenty-Two Donated By Red Cross

Twenty-two ambulances donated by the Canadian Red Cross already are busy on their work with the Canadian Active Service Force in the United Kingdom.

They are the first of a number of ambulances the Canadian Red Cross is sending to Britain and were handed over, without ceremony, to the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps immediately they arrived.

Col. R. M. Lutz, director general of Canadian Medical Services, said he was most grateful to get them. "They are of very great assistance and are thoroughly well equipped," he said.

To Hear Internment Reports
By virtue of a recent Order-in-Council, the Minister of Justice will, at the beginning of each session, make a report of internment operations to the House of Commons. The report will show the number of persons detained and the number of cases, if any, in which the Minister of Justice declined to follow the advice of an Advisory Committee on internment.

Hitler Program

Smuggling Propaganda Agents To The United States
Madame Genevieve Tabou, called French news commentator, told the Canadian Institute on Economics that Hitler, as a "fast steed," is sending 250 new propaganda agents to the United States.

"Their job will be to put Hitler over—sell him as the big pacifist and great uniter of Europe—even attempt to stop the magnificent evolution I have seen come over the American people in one fortnight," she said.

"But there is nothing Hitler can do. I say we must work strenuously for a few weeks—just a few weeks—and we can be sure of victory for the democracies. For the situation in Europe is far, far better than we think it is, and Hitler knows it."

Mme. Tabou's speech received an uproar of approval not equalled in the nine years' history of the institute.

She told the gathering that Hitler planned to invade eight English ports simultaneously with 2,000 boats supported by planes and parachute troops and that the invasion was to have been launched between July 25 and Aug. 10. It failed for three reasons, she said. The reasons were:

Failure to acquire the French navy; failure of Mussolini to live up to his promises regarding British Africa, and a German-Japanese dispute regarding French Indo-China.

"Hitler is not at all satisfied with the situation," she said. "He is far from his 'great plan' outlined so long ago as Feb. 12 by him to some 50 Nazis. He is far from his repeated boast of finishing the war in one year, after which, with a short interval for setting up a German-planned European economy, he planned to carry the war to the United States, unless he was clever enough to be able to get the American president to accept the German economy."

Helping War Effort

Many Surrender Their Pensions To Aid Canada In War

While Air Supremacy Drives and drives for the purchase of war-saving stamps and certificates, rather than money, donations from individuals and associations far and near, continue to ring out a merry tune in the daily contribution list coffers.

A trend that is assuming nation-wide proportions is noted in the great number of pensioners, voluntarily surrendering their pensions, in whole or in part, for the duration of the war to help Canada carry on.

During past weeks, scores of persons have written in asking to have anywhere from five to nearly one hundred dollars deducted from their monthly cheques.

Twenty-five thousand dollars in United States funds from an anonymous sympathizer were earmarked for the purchase of airplanes. Another $15,000 were received from L. A. Agassiz, Agassiz, B.C., for the same purpose. Donations, small and large, from individuals during the course of ten days recently amounted to approximately $60,000.

During the same period, donations from groups, such as municipalities, cities, towns, association and industrial firms amounted to about seventy-five thousand dollars.

Now being going on for four eight-year old to four, who raised $4.20 by selling home-made lemonade, overshadowed by the large total. It serves only to make their humble little gift the more admirable.

May Be Too Smart

Parrot In English Town Screeches Like Air-Raid Siren

There is a parrot in a southeast coast English town that has learned to imitate an air raid siren. As a result his owners have been seeking for air raid shelters much more often than anyone else in the town.

Not only does the parrot screech like a siren, but he follows his cry with an imitation of anti-aircraft gunfire. His owners are worn out looking for a shelter only to learn that it's their parrot instead of a blitzkrieg. And it looks very much as though one parrot will soon be added to the list of the war's casualties.

Britain Not Impressed

When Elizabeth was Queen of England and the Armada made such a poor impression on its first appearance, the population of England was said to be about three and a half millions. Mr. Hitler should realize that the breed has increased tremendously in the meantime and that air armadas are no more impressive than was King Philip's famous sea fleet.

There are birds with human habits. For instance, the rhea, ostrich-like bird of South America, sleeps lying down, with its legs stretched straight out behind.

Added To Other Crimes

Hitler Is Rapidly Becoming Worst Swindler In World

Not content with depriving the people in the occupied countries of their food supplies, then protesting against the British blockade overlooking the fact that Germany is doing her utmost to sink British ships and make the ports useless, and crying to humane neutral countries to feed starving millions, the Nazis are also robbing France of all kinds of goods by means of "baleeney" money at which she is such an adept at swindling ever since Dr. Hjalmar Schacht invented different kinds of Reichsmarks for different kinds of trade bargaining. The French have to pay the cost of maintaining the German army of occupation, and a merchant or business man may refuse an offer of purchase by German soldiers or agents on the basis of what are called "kassenscheine".

One of the armistice terms was that 20 French francs were to be equivalent to one mark. As the mark was theoretically worth 40 cents and the French franc was worth a little more than two cents that did not seem a hard bargain. But the German "kassenscheine" was mere token money, having no reserve behind it. The Bank of France was loaded up with 500,000,000 of this token money so as to deal with the French people, but some day the Bank of France is going to find itself in a stew. That money has no value except what Hitler chooses to say it has at any time, and if he decided to declare it worthless it will be worthless.

German soldiers in France are, of course, being paid with this token money by the German Government, and they are buying up everything they can in the stores and sending it home. An American correspondent reported that no fewer than 120 special trains loaded with French merchandise passed through the city of Lyon on the way to Germany in about one week after the surrender. France is being denuded of consumer goods.

What seems to be the biggest financial swindle perpetrated is being planned by Hitler. He looks like being the world's worst swindler in addition to his other crimes.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Canadian Mills Operating Full Blast
From figures released by the Department of Munitions and Supply, mills and firms engaged in the manufacture of personal equipment for the fighting forces are operating full blast.

During a two week period 22,000 full battle dress uniforms were produced, while 91,000 pairs of socks, 90,000 shirts, 40,000 sets of underwear and 68,000 pairs of boots were being turned out.

There has been an increase of 25 per cent in razor blade manufacturing in Great Britain since general war mobilization began.

I Read---And Write---For You

By JOHN C. KIRKWOOD

In the National Museum at Washington 20 persons spend all their time identifying insects. This work is being going on for four eight-year old to four, who raised $4.20 by selling home-made lemonade, overshadowed by the large total. It serves only to make their humble little gift the more admirable.

Before the outbreak of the current war Germany received many requests for insect identification, but now the Museum at Washington is receiving the correspondence formerly addressed to Germany. The Washington Museum contains approximately five million specimens, representing about 300,000 known varieties. The insects range from microscopic forms up to giants in the insect world—big scarabs and beetles, having pictures the size of those of a small lobster.

The most destructive or pestilent insect is the mosquito, charged with depredations of more than $125,000,000 a year. Second greatest offender is the boll weevil, and third the corn earworm, destroying nearly 100,000,000 annually of corn, tomatoes and cotton.

"If you are a 'snapping' photographer, you are in a very large commission. It is estimated that right now 18,000,000 persons are 'taking' pictures—vacation snapshots.

Of course, you may belong to a rank above the users of the cheap cameras—those who make no effort to hide either themselves or their snapping. Thus, you may belong to that growing company who operate the "candid" cameras, the ones who catch their human subjects unaware—actors, public speakers, society notables, criminal politicians, authors, and persons interesting to editors. Or you may belong to the "pictorialist" class, whose pictures are 'studied'—at to be shown at exhibitions—perhaps to be submitted in competition with the work of other artists—perhaps in international contests. Or you may be a 'documentary' photographer, one who seeks out types, in slums, or hamlets, or hinterlands, or any other place where you may hope to catch unposed, someone 'doing' for a class.

BOLEERO AND DRESS FOR TOTS

By Anne Adams

The "pigtail crown" likes bolero outfits as much as any grown-up. Here is an especially captivating style by Anne Adams, Pattern 4515. The skirt is double-paunched front and back, with the front waist- seam "upped" in a novel shape. There's a yoke pattern and when days begin to shorten, attach up a second style, adding the pert bolero, perhaps in wool challis. You might cut the bolero and skirt from remnants of your own dressmaking, and have the bolero in a slightly contrasting fabric.

Pattern 4515 is available in children's sizes 2, 4, 6 and 10. Size 6, skirt and bolero, takes 1 1/2 yards 36 inch fabric; blouse, 4 1/2 yard contrast. Send twenty cents (20c) in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly: Size, Name, Address and Style Number, and send orders to the Anne Adams Pattern Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermott Ave. E., Winnipeg.

17,000 Busy Building Aircraft
Some 17,000 Canadians are at present engaged in the aircraft industry in Canada. Of these 8,400 are employed in seven aircraft plants with the balance engaged in factories producing parts and equipment. This does not include employees of Canadian Associated Aircraft Ltd., engaged in assembling planes for the British Government. The figures represent an increase of 20 per cent in four weeks.

Perhaps your elevation is that of the color photographer, and as such a despatch of those content with the black-and-white photography.

What becomes of the photographs of the 18,000,000 amateur photographers? What becomes of your snapshots? Well, one way is that he has the right answer says that eventually all the costly fruits of the camera and up in the trash basket! But this should not be any discouragement of snappers. The fact is that most of us spend oceans of time and money in the indulgence of our likings—for food and drink, magazines and books, movies, beach-lounging, bridge, motoring, hobbies. Life would be as dull as lead if we did not do frivolous and useless things—if we didn't indulge our follies.

Here is news for deaf persons: the lenses in spectacles are being used as a microphone in a hearing aid for the deaf. This new aid is designed to hear sounds which are sensitive about their affliction. The entire hearing device is concealed in the frame of the eyeglasses. The lens serves as a diaphragm which picks up sound vibrations. These are converted into electrical impulses by an amplifier operated through batteries concealed in the temple portions of the frame.

The "hearing" plant with which the amplified currents are fed is mounted in the portion of the frame that sits on the ear. The patents on this mechanism are owned by the Radio Corporation of America (R.C.A.).

No longer need you be a sufferer from poison ivy. You can touch and feel the plant with the safety of a mummy from its poisonous resin. You just smear over your exposed skin the cream which contains the resin. This cream is a complete protection from the ivy's poison. The cream is made by mixing sodium perborate with vanishing cream.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

SEPTEMBER 3

INVITING OTHERS TO WORSHIP GOD

Golden text: Oh magnify the Lord with us, And let us exalt His name together. Psalm 34:3.

Lesson: Psalms 67: 96; 98.

Devotional reading: Isaiah 2:3-4.

Explanations And Comments

Inviting Others to Praise God, Psalm 96:1-4. The return from captivity called for a new song, and our psalmist begins:

Oh sing unto Jehovah a new song: Sing unto Jehovah, all the earth. "The entire earth is called upon to join the glad voices of the returned exiles. This is an outburst of overflowing praise, free and spontaneous. Salvation from day to day—each new day demands fresh praise, for the divine expressions of mercy are daily renewed. Nations and nations must know and love him. Tell to all the world the wonders of God's amazing love" (Abingdon Commentary).

Great is Jehovah. All nations must join in the praise of praise, for marvelous are his works among all people; other gods are but "things of naught" (Revised Version). Jehovah is the only God who is to be revered. Honor and majesty are before him as attendants; strength and beauty adorn his sanctuary.

It is good, to read these psalms. Psalm 96:1-4. Here the psalmist invites the whole world to bring an offering and come into the courts of Jehovah. Note the threefold repetition of "sing unto Jehovah," translated by Moffatt as "praise Jehovah," which corresponds to the threefold repetition of "sing unto Jehovah" of verses 1 and 2. The familiar words of our hymn, "Tell it out among the nations that the Lord is King," give the force of the words of verse 7-10.

Harlow never interfered. He gave exact instructions as to how the money was to be dealt with, into which accounts it must be paid, and that was all. At the end of a transaction he threw a thousand or two at his assistant, as a bone to a dog.

Ellenbury had never been so rich in his life as he was now. He could hire his bank manager without a sinking feeling in the pit of his stomach—no longer did the sight of a strange man walking past the door to the house fill him with a sense of foreboding. Yet once he had seen the Sheriff's office in every stranger.

But he had grown accustomed to property; it had become a normal condition of life and freed his mind to hate the source of his affluence.

A slave-at-best a freedman. If Harlow crooked his finger he must run to him; if Harlow on a motor car wired "Meet me at—" any inaccessible spot, he must drop his work and fly. Mr. Franklin Ellenbury, an officer of the High Court of Justice, a graduate of a great university, a man of sensibility and genius.

No wonder, Mr. Ellenbury bit at his nails and thought of drafts and sunny cafes and picture galleries which he had long desired to visit, and perhaps, after he was sated with the novelty of travel, a villa near Florence with orange groves and masses of bougainvillea clustering between white walls and jade-green balconies.

"A gentleman to see you, sir."

He roused himself from his dreams with a painful start.

"To see me?" The clock on his desk said fifteen minutes after 11. All the house save the weary maid was asleep. "But at this hour?" "Who is he? What does he want?" "He's about in a big car."

Automatically, as springing to his feet and ran out of the room.

Harlow!

How like the swine, not condescending to alight, but summoning his thing to his chariot wheels!

"Is that you, Ellenbury?"

The voice that spoke from the darkness of the car was his.

"Yes, Mr. Harlow."

"You'll be getting inquiries about the Gibbins woman—probably tomorrow. Carlton is certain to call—he has found that the letters were posted from Norwood. Why didn't you post them in town?"

"I thought—er—well, I wanted to keep the business away from my office."

"You could still have posted them in town. Don't try to hide the fact that you sent these letters. Mrs. Gibbins was an old family servant of yours. You told me once that you had a woman with a similar name in your employ."

"She's dead," began Ellenbury.

"So much the easier for you to lie!" was the answer. "Is everything going smoothly at Rata?"

"Everything, Mr. Harlow."

"Good!"

The lawyer stood at the foot of the steps watching the car until it vanished on the road.

That was Harlow! Requesting nothing—just ordering. Saying "Let this be done," and never doubting that it would be done.

He went slowly back to his study, dismissed the servant to bed, and until the early hours of the morning was studying a Continental time-table—Madrid, Munich, Cordova, Barcelona—delightful places all.

As he passed his wife's bedroom she called him and he went in.

"I'm not at all well to-night," she said fretfully. "I can't sleep."

He comforted her with words, knowing that at 10 o'clock the previous night she had eaten a supper that would have satisfied an agricultural laborer.

CHAPTER XVI

Mr. Harlow had timed his warning well. He had the general's gift of foretelling his enemy's movements. Jim called the next morning at the lawyer's office in Theobald's road, and when the door clerk denied him an interview, he produced his card.

"Take that to Mr. Ellenbury," I think he will see me," he said.

The clerk returned in a few seconds and ushered him into a cupboard of a place which could not have been more than seven feet square. Mr. Ellenbury rose nervously from behind his microscope desk and offered a limp, damp hand.

"Good morning, Inspector," he said. "We do not get many visitors from Scotland Yard. May I inquire your business?"

"I am making inquiries regarding the death of a woman named Gibbins," said the visitor.

Mr. Ellenbury was not startled. He bowed his head slowly.

"She was the woman taken out of the Regent's Canal some weeks ago; I remember the inquest," he said.

"Eef mother, Louisa Gibbins, had been drawing a quarterly pension of £13, which I understand, was sent by you?"

"It was a bluff designed to startle the man into betraying himself, but to Jim Carlton's astonishment, Mr. Ellenbury lowered his head again.

"Yes," he said, "that is perfectly true. I knew her mother, a very excellent old lady who was for some time in my employ. She was very good to my dear wife, who is now dead, and I have made her an allowance for many years. I did not know she was dead until the case of the drowned charwoman came into court and caused me to make inquiries."

"The allowance was stopped before these facts were made public," challenged Jim Carlton, and again he was dumfounded when the lawyer agreed.

"It was delayed—not stopped," he said, "and it was only by accident that the money was not sent at the usual time," he said. "Fortunately or unfortunately, I happened to be rather ill when the allowance should have been sent off. The day I returned to the office and dispatched the money I learned of Mrs. Gibbins' death. It is clear that the woman, instead of informing me of her mother's death, suppressed the fact in order that she might benefit financially. If she had lived and it were not for the fact that she had been prosecuted for her embezzlement."

Carlton knew that his visit had been anticipated, and the story cut and dried in advance. To press any further questions would be to make Harlow's suspicion a certainty. He could round off his inquiry pleasantly enough, and this he did.

"I think that is my final question in the case," he said with a smile. "I am sorry to have bothered you, Mr. Ellenbury. You never met Mrs. Annie Gibbins?"

"Never," replied Ellenbury, with such emphasis that Jim knew he was speaking the truth. "I assure you I had no idea of her existence."

"From one lawyer to another was a natural step; more natural since Mr. Stebbings' office was in the vicinity, and this interview at least held one pleasant possibility—he might see Allen."

She was a little staggered when he entered her room.

"Mr. Stebbings—why on earth—" And then tentatively: "I'm so sorry! I am not as inquisitive as I appear!"

Mr. Stebbings, who was surprised at nothing, saw him at once, and listened without comment to the detective's business.

"I never saw Mr. Marling except once," he said. "He was a wild, rather erratic individual and, so far as I know, went to the Argentine and did not return."

"You're sure that he went abroad?" asked Jim.

Mr. Stebbings, being a lawyer, was too cautious a man to be sure of anything.

"He took his ticket and presumably sailed, his name was on the passenger list. Miss Alice Harlow caused inquiries to be made; I think she was most anxious that Marling's association with Mr. Harlow should be definitely broken. That, I am afraid, as all I can tell you."

"What kind of a man was Marling? Yes, I know he was wild and a little erratic, but was he the type of man who could be dominated by Harlow?"

A very rare smile flitted across the massive face of the lawyer.

"Is there anybody in the world who would not be dominated by Mr. Harlow?" he asked dryly. "I know very little of what is happening outside my own profession, but from such knowledge as I have acquired I understand that Mr. Harlow is rather a tyrant. I use the word in its original and historic sense," he hastened to add.

Jim made a gentle effort to hear more about Mr. Harlow and his earlier life. He was particularly interested in the will, a copy of which he had evidently seen at Somerset House, but here the lawyer was indomitable. He hinted that, if the police procured an order from a Judge in chambers, or if they went through some other obscure process of law, he would have no alternative but to reveal all that he knew about his former client; but otherwise—

Allen was not in her room when he passed through, and he lingered a while, hoping to see her, but apparently she was engaged (to her annoyance, it must be confessed) with the junior partner; he left Bloombury with a feeling that he had not extracted the completest satisfaction from his visit.

Poles Sing Scotch Song

Polish Soldiers in Britain Sing "The Bonnie Banks of Loch Lomond."

A few nights ago Canadians who happened to be listening to the overseas broadcast of the BBC were taken by a splendid chorus of voices in Edinburgh singing "The Bonnie Banks of Loch Lomond." The songsters were not Scots. They were Polish soldiers, part of the unquarrelable army that, after struggling valiantly against impossible odds in their own country, escaped in small groups in Rumania and Hungary, made their way to France with an epic adventure, were reorganized there as an army, fought again against the common enemy, escaped from France at the last moment, and were now embodied in the British forces. Some of them were celebrating a national occasion in the Scottish capital, and, after singing as only Poles can sing a number of the songs of their Fatherland, stirred the hearts of their Scottish fellow-soldiers by this magnificent rendering of "The Bonnie Banks of Loch Lomond." Who can fail to count these heroic souls as comrades in the great battle for freedom?—Canadian Friends of Poland.

Answer To Inquiries

Lord Beaverbrook Tells What Fighter And Bomber Planes Cost

For the information of anyone with the money to spare or the urge the collect it, a fighter plane for the Royal Air Force can be bought with £5,000 ($22,500) and a bomber costs £20,000 ($89,000). The figures were given by Lord Beaverbrook, Canadian-born minister of aircraft production, in reply to numerous inquiries. People wishing to start their own thought it would be a good idea to be told how much was aimed at and how many planes that would buy.

One suggestion is that the air ministry list prices of airplane parts so that patriotic folk who can't contribute a fighting plane might buy some instrument or a bolt or two for the war effort.

Military Training

Dominion Civil Servants Will Receive Only Military Pay

Civil servants of the Dominion government taking military training will be paid only the military pay attaching to their ranks if they take their training during the time in which they would be regularly occupied at their civilian jobs, according to an order issued by the defence department.

But if they take their training during vacations or after hours, they will be entitled to both civilian and military pay.

The order provides that absence for military training shall not affect seniority or status in the service.

Many Economies Practised

King George and Queen Elizabeth Lead Way For People

Heading the vast family that is the British empire are a man and woman who, by their examples of determination and self-sacrifice, have done much to stiffen the morale of their subjects and who, by their ever-cheerful attitude have typified the true British spirit through darkest days of the war.

King George and Queen Elizabeth have shown their countrymen the lead in many little wartime economies as well as paying frequent visits to defence forces and those engaged in vital war work. One illustration of this is seen in a paper-saving idea adopted by the Queen.

Every morning she sits at a rosewood desk in Buckingham Palace, writes her letters, and what they are told. They do not need instruments such as all British planes are supplied with. If the leader is lost the squadron is helpless as far as direction goes, and this perhaps explains why the Germans retreat so rapidly when attacked.

"The gallant ones aces of the last war have no place in this one," said this German officer, in which he differs from the British tradition. When we read of Italians and German boys being shot down in German planes we can understand that the rapid output of German planes does not mean so much. They have not the men to man them to equal the aviators who pilot the British planes to victory.—Hamilton Spectator.

Where Their Weakness Lies

German Planes Not Built Or Equipped For Efficient Service

A condition of the German air service in war is probably not generally known, but may account for the superiority in battle of the British airmen over the Germans. This superiority is so marked that the German authorities can only deny it and pretend by false reports that they have the upper hand of the British. For example, the British report of one day's fighting gives the Germans a loss of 78 planes to 29 British, while the German reports were 96 British planes destroyed and fewer than 20 German planes brought down. This may please the Germans but they are not permitted to listen to radio news and whose newspapers only print what the authorities allow.

But why the disproportion of planes actually shot down? There is no doubt the Germans have some fighters, and in the Kaiser's war some of the most distinguished. It does not appear to be so at present and there must be a reason. Collier's magazine had an interview with a German air officer, who stated that the German planes were not fitted up in the complete manner insisted upon by the British. Only the leading officers had such planes.

The subordinate fliers had to be contented with poorly built planes intended to last just as long as they carry fire to the enemy. The German plan of attack is not individual. The planes move in squadrons and the leader is responsible for direction. The others follow him and do what they are told. They do not need instruments such as all British planes are supplied with. If the leader is lost the squadron is helpless as far as direction goes, and this perhaps explains why the Germans retreat so rapidly when attacked.

Men Invaded Home

Members Of Canadian Active Service Force Arrived In Toronto

Sixty-seven members of the Canadian Active Service Force returned from England because of sickness, wounds or disabilities, arrived in Toronto recently. They were greeted by joyous wives, children and relatives.

"Jerry never will set foot in England," said Cpl. Michael McLean, a Toronto highlander. "If he does, he'll get the beating of his life. The army is prepared, after the navy and air force get their crack at him. You'd be really surprised at what they've done over there to get ready."

Two dozen of the returning soldiers were veterans of the first Great War. Majority of the older men admitted that old complaints had finally caught up with them.

The taxpayers of Alberta, the majority of whom are farmers, have for the past five years been paying the members of the provincial cabinet something like $75,000 a year in salaries. Seven or eight men drawing down that amount of money yearly between them ought to have sufficient collective ability and initiative to do something towards helping to work out, in co-operation with the federal authorities, a practical scheme whereby farmers may receive a reasonable advance on grain stored on the farm, and the farmer be given protection, so that collection sharks do not grab the proceeds of the first quota deliveries. Both provincial governments in Manitoba and Saskatchewan have already taken steps to work out some feasible plan of action to assist the grain producer at this critical period. If the Alberta provincial government cannot do anything towards helping to solve matters of this nature and expect the federal authorities to shoulder all war work and all the domestic problems as well, it would appear that the taxpayers of Alberta are donating $75,000 a year to seven or eight figureheads, whose main usefulness lies in their ability to make fulsome speeches in a vain attempt to hide their inefficiency to cope with this, or any other vital problem effecting the welfare of the farmers of this province.—Trochu Tribune.

We came on the Empress of Australia, the same boat the King and Queen came on. The four of us had a room to ourselves; it was like a hotel—even a fan in it. There were seven troop ships and two battleships, and the last two days six destroyers came out from England and two big airplanes. We took nine days to cross the ocean and none of us were sick. We are now billeted in a brick building near a main camp, and are lucky to have mattresses and springs to sleep on, and good meals, too. We think everything is swell. There are about ten Olds boys in this building, and they ask me to say Hello!"
